Jr Interior Designer Job Description

Position Overview:

Housewarming Home Staging & Design is seeking a detail-oriented individual with excellent interpersonal skills to join our team as a Junior Interior Designer. The Junior Designer will work directly with the Lead Designer to understand and draw design plans as per client goals, source products and materials and determine material costs. They will also be expected to understand and comply with the regulatory environment around inspections and building codes.

Housewarming is a boutique design firm with offices located in Georgetown. We work in and around the Greater Puget Sound area on primarily remodel and construction projects, from schematic layouts to full permitting, as well as furniture & décor design projects. We also have a staging division. See our website for more information.

Candidates for this position think creatively about the use of space, color and movement and will draw on other artistic mediums for creative inspiration. They will also be effective communicators with the ability to persuade and communicate a design idea. The ideal candidate for this position will be a designer with the desire to grow and move up within our organization. Our Lead Designers are excellent mentors and will assist you in achieving your goals as a designer.

Our firm presents a rather unique opportunity in that Junior Designers will be exposed to and involved with a multitude of design tools, skills, and client projects. The opportunity to move up quickly with us is great and we pride ourselves in investing in our team members.

Job Terms: 25-32 hours/week, hybrid situation with option to work from home when the project load is suitable.

Hourly Rate: Starting at $18/hour
